

Centurion Arms Glock Mag Extension Installation

Remove the original base plate from the magazine as recommended by the manufacturer. If you find a plastic or metal piece or insert at the bottom of the magazine spring, remove it and do not use with the magazine extension. Remove the original magazine follower from the spring and install it on the new extra power spring. Slide the follower and spring into the magazine body with the follower facing the same direction as with the original spring. With the spring depressed fully into the magazine body, slide the extension onto the magazine body and let the spring settle into the extension. Using the provided hex wrench, tighten the screw, hand tight only.
